The field of grain is in the foreground and middle ground, appearing as a dense, golden-brown expanse. The sky is a clear, pale blue. The overall scene is bright and sunny, suggesting a clear day.

GRAINEWS DOESN'T SERVE THE AVERAGE PRAIRIE FARMER

Because there isn't one

Western Canada isn't two-crop country

A farmer in Western Canada could be a 27-year old growing canola, yellow peas and barley on 1,500 acres. It could be a 43-year old growing barley, lentils, winter wheat and flax on 3,200 acres, plus looking after 150 beef cattle. It could be a 62-year old growing durum wheat, lentils, chickpeas and canola on 5,000 acres.

But that's just what they're growing this year. Next year their crop mix could be partly or completely different. And it should be — the benefits of rotating crops have been known for many years. Today the practice is more important than ever. With new challenges such as weed resistance to herbicides, farmers need to rotate not only their crops, but the products they need to grow them. That makes deciding on the right combination of crops and products more challenging than ever. With our tagline of "Practical Production Tips for the Prairie Farmer," Graineews helps our readers make those decisions.

Reaching 50 million-plus acres

At Graineews, we know that our readers are even more diversified than the crops they grow, and no two farms are the same. Whether it's a large established farmer or a young one starting to take over from mom and dad, our job is to help them farm every acre better, no matter how many they own or operate. Though farms have become fewer and larger in Western Canada — the average size is now about 1,100 acres — just eight per cent are larger than 3,500 acres. The average Graineews reader reports more than 2,600 acres, which means that your message can reach not just that eight per cent, but also the ones operating more than 50 million acres in Western Canada.

Farmers aren't just our readers — they're our writers

When Graineews started in 1975, it was an immediate success, largely due to its theme of "Written for farmers, by farmers." It still applies today. Editor Leeann Minogue is a partner on a grain farm in southern Saskatchewan. Many in our stable of contributors are farmers, but that stable also includes not only our professional staff, but industry agronomists and specialists who work directly with farmers and understand what kind of practical information they need to manage their crops.

Grain farmers keep cattle too

Despite our title, we recognize that many grain farmers have beef cattle, which is why we have a "Cattleman's Corner" section. Like the rest of the publication, its focus is on practical tips for the cow-calf producer, whether he or she has just a few cattle or a few hundred.
